

NALSAR University of Law Hyderabad

FEEDBACK PROCESS, ANALYSIS AND ACTION TAKEN

Student Feedback:

The University has a formal system of obtaining academic feedback from the students in a designed format at the end of each semester. Such feedback is sought from students in relation to all subjects offered during the semester whether transacted by internal or external faculty. The feedback form seeks information on teaching and learning processes, relational protocols and evaluation practices adopted by the teacher. Feedback on issues not covered by the form is sought on blank additional sheets.

Other than the formal written feedback, regular open houses are conducted by the Vice Chancellor to be in constant communication with the students so that their grievances are promptly addressed and suggestions swiftly received in conducting the affairs of the University. With the sudden onslaught of the pandemic and the distress situation faced by several students and faculties, systematic feedback evaluation was suspended during those semester. However, the Vice Chancellor had taken feedback in open houses that were held

The feedback obtained from the students is shared with the teacher. Teacher is expected to improve after receiving the feedback. Suggestions taken into account whilst allocating teaching responsibilities as well as in deciding continuance / appointment and promotion of teachers.

Feedback from Teachers:

Feedback from in-house teachers is taken during the Faculty Meetings on course review. Curriculum related discussions are always on the agenda when faculty seminars/research workshops organized by the University where eminent scholars and academicians interact with subject teachers.

Feedback from Employers:

As we have a robust campus recruitment system a number of employers connect with us as part of that process. Others have chosen to participate in our elective system as a way of strengthening the practical learning component and those teaching opportunities provide occasion for feeding their inputs into the system. With eminent academicians and professionals visiting the University for guest lectures and programmes conducted by research centres provides a peer review by engaging in an academic dialogue on the latest developments in the domain area of their expertise.

Feedback from Alumni:

The University has an alumni network which periodically offers its opinions on the policies of the University. A large number of alumni have come back to teach at the University and these occasions have been employed to seek their opinion on the policies and programmes of the University. The alumni also are an additional medium for communicating those concerns of and on students which formal feedback does not bring forth.
