Nalsar final 2017 recruitments hit 100% for RCC, rest

Nalsar Hyderabad's first out of the gate to confirm final the jobs secured by its 2017 graduating batch, scoring jobs for all 58 students who were part of the organised campus recruitments out of a total batch of 74.

10, followed by Cyril Amarchand Mangaldas with 6, and Luthra & Luthra with 5 jobs.

Trilegal hired 4, and AZB & Partners 3.

Two students each were picked up by Khaitan & Co, P&C Legal and S&R Associates.

One job each was accepted at Finsec Law Advisors, Lakshmikumaran & Sridharan Attorneys, Nishith Desai Associates, and Zehn Legal.

On the in-house side, the RPG Group picked up 5, while ICICI Bank picked up 4 students.

Non-RCC break-up

According to the RCC, the 16 students who did not participate in the RCC, intend to "pursue careers in academia, policy making, judicial and civil services, et cetera":

Students of the Class of 2017 have also been offered admission for further studies at prestigious universities including the University of California at Berkeley ('Boalt Hall'), the Participating Universities for the European Masters in Law and Economics program, the Faculty of Law, Oxford University, and Faculty of Law, Cambridge University, University of California at Los Angeles, Cornell University, and the London School of Economics.

The approximate current break up of future career plans of the 16 who did not participate in the RCC process, is currently the following:

- 2 students have secured LLM admissions.
- 4 are nationals of Bhutan, who will be returning to Bhutan to litigate or write public services exams there.

SERVICE EXAMIN.

- 2 are planning to litigate - one in Dehradun, and the other mostly in the Delhi high court but before that is currently trying to bag a judicial clerkship in the Supreme Court or Delhi high court.
- 1 will join a business.

We intend to keep updating these figures as LLM and other examination results become available, to ultimately account for what 100% of the batch is doing.

Votes of thankses

The 2017 Nalsar recruitment coordination committee consists of Aishwaria Ramanan, Enakshi Jha, Eshwar R, Kartik Chawla, PSS Bhargava, Srimukundan R, Yugal Jain, who thanked vice chancellor Prof Faizan Mustafa, registrar Prof V Balakista Reddy and faculty for their support.

The RCC also thanked all recruiting organisations, expressed its "gratitude to the entities that have shared a time-honoured relationship with us and continued to repose faith in the competence and quality of NALSAR students".

"gratitude to the entities that have shared a time-honoured relationship with us and continued to repose faith in the competence and quality of NALSAR students"

Mustafa commented, in the RCC's statement: "Congratulations to the Class of 2017 for their successful recruitment season. This is the first batch to completely benefit from our unique elective and seminar system that was introduced in 2012, and the recruitment figures for this class reflect its effectiveness.

"The class has also benefited from the reforms that we have initiated, such as: abolition of marks for attendance, introduction of online bidding of project, and the shift towards liberty model. I wish all my students the best for all their future endeavours."

The RCC students echoed that bit of Mustafa's Nalsar PR in their release, saying:

season affirms the diligence and merit of the students of the Class of 2017. We also take this opportunity to emphasise on the instrumental role that NALSAR's rigorous academic system has played in our success.

With its flexible and diverse elective and seminar course options, this academic model also allows students to pursue numerous co-curricular activities including academic writing, law review editorial positions, moot courts, client counselling, etc, thereby resulting in a well-rounded law school experience.

While we at LI are fond of treating such effusive reviews and quotes of law schools with a pinch of salt, it's telling that at least Nalsar students and the VC have anything at all to write home about in terms of the structure and initiatives of its academics and admin.

Tellingly, Mustafa was also the only NLU VC to have replied in 2016 to our open call to publish VC's unedited accounts of what made their law school special, and from that perspective, the story at least checks out in terms of consistency with the above.

Nalsar Hyderabad's 2019 graduating batch has again found jobs for all of its 52 recruitment coordination committee (RCC) members, out of a total batch of 77.

The largest single recruiter was AZB & Partners, which hired 10, followed by Cyril Amarchand Mangaldas, which hired 7, and L&L Partners, which picked up 6.

The other large firms included Trilegal (4) and Khaitan & Co (3), and Shardul Amarchand Mangaldas (3).

One student each was picked up by Majmudar & Partners, S&R Associates and Verist Law.

One student will be joining international firm Herbert Smith Freehills on a training contract.

A total of 8 students joined corporates (led by two students each joining Edelweiss Asset Reconstruction Company, ICICI Bank, and Vedanta; GMR and HDFC Bank each picked up one).

A total of 7 had joined public sector undertakings (including two on a one-year internship with National Mineral Development Corporation). "Furthermore, we thank our alumni for extending immense support and guidance throughout the recruitment season."

The RCC was run by students Rahul Joshi, Ritika Banerjee, Sadhika Gulati, Shubham Sancheti, Shubhi Goyal and Shreejoyee Bhattacharya.

In a statement, they thanked the administration, adding: “Furthermore, we thank our alumni for extending immense support and guidance throughout the recruitment season.”

Vice chancellor (VC) Faizan Mustafa commented in a statement: “Nalsar had introduced some major changes in its curriculum in 2013-14 and I am glad that these changes have started giving us rich dividends.

“The quality and competence of my students has been globally recognised and it gives me immense satisfaction that each year my students are improving on the placement record of the previous year. I wish all my students the best for all their future endeavours.”

Non-RCC

The 25 other students in the batch are “intend to pursue careers in Civil Services, Judicial Services, litigation, entrepreneurship, as judicial clerks” and some have “gained an opportunity for further studies at prestigious Universities such as University of Cambridge, University of Oxford, Cornell Law School, University of Chicago Law School, University of Pennsylvania Law School and New York University”, according to a statement from the RCC.

Nalsar did not share final recruitments in 2018, but in 2017, Nalsarites had scored 100% jobs for 58 RCC subscribers (out of a batch of 74).

Nalsar 2021: 100% placements but clearly things were more difficult than in non-Corona times

Nalsar Hyderabad's recruitment coordination committee (RCC) has announced the final results for recruitments for its 73 members in an exceedingly difficult and unusual year (full stats below).

The Nalsar RCC, which only just dissolved last month (unusually late in the year), is the first of several national law universities we had contacted to share its 2021 recruitments with the world following a pandemic year that has been unpredictable so far as graduate jobs go.

A Nalsar RCC member said: "We understand that this information usually comes to you immediately following Day Zero, but given the pandemic situation, Day Zeroes across NLUs were delayed and recruitments went on for longer."

The member added: "We send this update to fill the existing information gap regarding the placements of the batch of 2021 across NLUs, so incoming students and future aspirants might benefit from the same and be able to make better-informed decisions.”

The total batch strength was 120 to 125 students, of which 73 subscribed to the RCC. According to the RCC’s release:

The RCC Subscribers’ Pool consisted of 73 subscribers. 6 PPOs were accepted before the RCC was constituted and 67 jobs were secured through the RCC.

Apart from the above, two subscribers secured jobs through individual endeavours as Law Clerk at the Supreme Court, and at J. Sagar Associates.

Many non-subscribers secured jobs at tier-1 firms and advocates’ chambers through individual applications.

A number of 2021 graduates are also currently preparing for competitive exams like the UPSC CSE and PCS(J).

The mix of jobs is a typical one of large law firms, including even newcomers such as Anagram Partners, which hired two Nalsarites (see below).

However, Nalsar’s RCC did not itemise every single job accepted by name, including a grouping of “other law firms and chambers” and “other corporate entities”, which included 15 jobs in total, in order to “safeguard the exclusive relations NALSAR maintains and has established with certain entities and the interests of subsequent batches”.

The RCC also said that during its term from October 2019 to July 2021, the RCC saw two by-elections, with old members stepping down and new members joining. The following members were part of the RCC:

Aditi Ramakrishnan, Aditya Bhayal, Akash Kumar Prasad, Aryan Shastri, Avani Agarwal, Bhavish Kaki, Dwiti Goyal, Hemant Gupta, Kajal Kashyap, Kumarjeet Ray, Neeharika Nakka, Nishant Pande, Piyush Rath, Prachi Tripathi, Pradham Kanduri, Prankul Boobana, Rohil Deshpande, Rohit Iyengar, Sachith Kapoor, Shreyashi Himja, Suneha Kasal, Sushrut Kaplay, Vaibhav Laddha, Yash Agarwal, and Yash Bhagwat.
