Title: Cross-disciplinary Learning at NALSAR

NALSAR became the first National Law University to start a Department of Management Studies (DoMS). By the academic year 2022-23, DoMS was offering two full-time programs, they are, MBA and 5-year B.B.A and M.B.A. Over the last ten years, the Department has attracted diverse and intellectually curious students from across the country. The faculty of the Law Department constantly engage with the students of the Management Department by regularly rendering interdisciplinary courses. In addition to this, the faculty members at the Management Department are now conducting various interdisciplinary workshops and are contributing to the growth of the University. The events, seminars and conferences conducted by the Management Department are also helping the law students in exposing themselves for some interdisciplinary learning. Further, the Management faculty are also being encouraged to float elective courses in the Law Department, this has helped students in developing a multi-pronged approach for problem-solving, a rare quality in today's law students. To bolster the argument, it would be worthy to note that, NALSAR offers courses like 'Enterprise Resource Planning', 'Digital Marketing', 'Digital Evidence Retrieval and Analysis Systems', 'PAT Informatics' etc. to law students which has aided the above-stated multi-pronged thinking.

In addition to the Law students, the Management students have been sensitized on society, politics and economy because of the peer-to-peer interactions of management and law Departments. This shade of legal and ethical thinking is also a very unique characteristic of today's management students.
